Dj fine; unclipped 23.00, protected in new, clear sleeve. This comic coming-of-age novel about a naive young London woman who falls for the wrong man won the Whitbread Prize in 1993. Agnes Day has enjoyed the traditional experiences a middle-class upbringing has to offer: a comfortable home she is eager to escape, parents who love and misunderstand her, a terrifying bout of boarding school followed by an impressive and nearly useless university degree. Now she finds herself on her own and embarking on adult life, without a clue as to how that should actually work. 218 pages. Size: 8vo - over 7¾" - 9¾" tall. Book.
