The first pale clear glow of the dawn was just beginning to tell on the higher slopes of the hills when she arose; and all the house was asleep. The heart-searching of that long night had calmed her somewhat. Now she was chiefly anxious to get away--to seek forgetfulness of this sad discovery in the immediate duty that lay before her. And if sometimes the fear was forced upon her that neither for him nor for her was forgetfulness possible--well, it was not her own share of that suffering that she regarded with dismay. Nay, did she not rather welcome that as a punishment which she deserved--as a penance which might be counted to her in the due course of years If this passage in her life was not to be obliterated, at least, and in the meantime, she would endeavour to close the chapter. She was going away from Allt-namVOL. II. u ba; and from the mistakes and miseries that had happened there. A new era in her life was opening before her; perhaps she would have less to reproach herself with in that. In the silence of this pale clear morning she sat down and quickly wrote still another message of farewell, the terms of which she had carefully (and not without some smittings of conscience) studied during the long wakeful hours: --Allt-nam-ba, Wednesday morning. Dear Archie--A grave duty calls me suddenly away to the south. No...
