Excerpt: . sensitiveness adjusted until the deflection reads directly in hundredths of a degree. No special provision is made for reversing B and N, as experience with the earlier apparatus showed this to be unnecessary. The new apparatus differs from the old, also, in that the thermometer must be detachable. Two heavy wires have therefore been run to two metal blocks in each calorimeter, and to these the thermometer can easily be attached. It will be noted in fig. 7 that each calorimeter is not provided with an entirely independent set of connections, but that the chair calorimeter and calorimeter No. 4 are connected in parallel, as are also calorimeters Nos. 3 and 5. This is allowable because other considerations prevent the calorimeters thus joined from ever being used at the same time. It will be seen that the method as described is approximate only,...
